Dear Mongane,

Greetings! I hope that my note reaches you and your family in good health. At present, together with a group of serious people (Melba Kgositsile, Albie Sachs, Dr. Cyril Khanyile, Charlayne Hunter-Gault, and myself) are trying to work on a program of significance to our struggle and of importance to the history of our infinite continuity. We would like to put together a book of my works scattered throughout the continents. Part of the story is similar to what you have already begun to do in London. So if we can keep each other informed on a step by step basis, that would be very helpful. Meanwhile I have an emergency that has to do with one of my daughters and also my health. I need various medications for my everyday survival. My daughter needs to come to this country for various interviews before she can be admitted to the local colleges here in the fall.

I have given some photographs to Dali (incidentally he has been very helpful also), perhaps you can ask him to show these to you to give you an idea of some of the works that I have ready for viewing and casting. Go ahead with your programme there, just make sure you keep us abreast of whats going on there, you may contact either Melba Kgositsile or/and Dr. Khanyile and off course myself.

About Julian Bahule, if you are having problems with him tell him to contact me and and STOP PLAYING WITH HIMSELF.

Once again, I am appreciative of your efforts in putting together the broken pieces. It is long overdue, I admire the commitment and perserverance over the years of people like you, Gerard Sekoto, Kehla Maqhubela, the late Ephraim Ngatane, and Joe Maphiri, despite all the exploitation, frustration, and prejudice confronted by our people within their humble acheivements. The support of strong historians such as yourself and Dr. Khanyile and the many enlightened peoples of the world that transcend the petty mindedness of racism, is a continual source of encouragement for me. Anyway, enough for now, let me know how you fare.

May God Allah grant us all guidance and advanced spiritual knowledge. Bless you and Peace be with you. By the way, I need about $5,000.00 (Five thousand dollars) to help me out with im-
